All are Welcome at Church Street!

We believe every person is of sacred worth and created in God's image. We welcome and celebrate the gifts God has given to all persons without regard to race, color, national origin, ethnicity, age, gender, disability, status, economic condition, sexual orientation, gender identity, or religious affiliation.

We respect diversity of opinion and expressions of Christian faith. We believe God loves everyone unconditionally! As God loves us, so let us love and serve in the name of Christ.

Dear Church Family,

Greetings to each of you! As I begin my ministry here with you all, I find the simple words of Paul from Ephesians 1:15-17 to be a powerful prayer.

"I have heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love toward all the saints, and for this reason I do not cease to give thanks for you as I remember you in my prayers. I pray that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation as you come to know him."

I share these words from St. Paul's letter for several reasons. First, they are good words for the time in which we find ourselves. Except for a small handful of folks that I had met before Covid and before I was projected to be one of your pastors, I have not met you. I have, however, heard of your faith. I have known many of your former pastors; I have met candidates for ministry from Church Street; I have been a part of Holston Conference for over a decade and have seen much of the fruit of your ministry beyond Knoxville. I have been praying intentionally for you, for all of the clergy and staff, and for our shared ministry since this spring when I was informed I would be serving with this storied community of faith. I have prayed that we can gather safely. I have prayed for the countless ministries and projects that have been postponed, cancelled, or reimagined.

Paul gives us a cue for our faith, even in the midst of crisis. Paul unites his prayers with his thanksgivings. Even as I pray for our transition, our return to worship, our longing for some sense of "normal," I give thanks. Last week I joined a meeting to discuss the Summer Lecture Series. I was blown away by the effort that had been expended to reformat this annual program. I have already begun to connect with Sunday school classes that are meeting over zoom. My heart is full with thanksgiving for such commitment to the gospel and one to another. As Christians we are Easter people, a people of hope, even when our Easter celebrations, our farewells, and our welcomes are a stunted version of what we would like. Nonetheless, these things have happened. Our doors have been shut, but ministry hasn't stopped. I have heard from some of our members that the shutdown and online meetings have drawn them closer to one another. The Nave is empty on Sunday mornings, but worship carries on. The beauty of our choir has even found a way to shine in this moment by gathering virtually and revisiting recordings. There is much for which to be thankful here at Church Street!

The climax of Paul's greeting is about Jesus. I haven't included the whole paragraph, but Paul quickly turns his focus on the God revealed in Jesus. I am encouraged that our shared focus is on Jesus, too. The challenges we face and the work we have ahead are all manageable in the light of Jesus' love and grace. Though the times are strange, I am overwhelmed with hope because of Jesus. This past Sunday I ended my pastoral prayer with the words of the children's hymn: "Jesus loves me." Many years ago now, a well-known pastor and theologian, Karl Barth, was asked at the end of his life what had been the most important thing he had learned while teaching and in writing his 38 volumes on theology. Barth reportedly responded with a smile as he began to sing "Jesus loves me, this I know, for the Bible tells me so." My prayer is that as we grow and serve together, our hearts may be transformed by Jesus as we come to know him ever more fully and faithfully.

Peace,

Rev. Timothy J. Best

Journeying Forward

Over the next few months, we will highlight portions of Unfinished Journey, and its contents as it describes the journey of Church Street, its people, its challenges, and its successes and failures placed in the context of two centuries of American history. It is a journey far from completed, a story still in the process of being told. Installment Two is below.

White's Chapel built on efforts of Rev. John Haynie and Judge White

In 1816, Knoxville merchant and former Episcopalian John Haynie had an idea. He was a son of Virginian Spencer Haynie and a veteran of the Revolutionary War. In 1806, John and his family moved to Tennessee and joined the Methodists, meeting in the home of George Wagner six miles east of Knoxville. He and his wife, Elizabeth, joined that congregation in 1809 and he was licensed to preach in 1811. He later moved to Knoxville and found that there was no Methodist church, though the town was visited by circuit riders. He noted that a group of Knoxville Presbyterians had just moved into their first church in 1816.

Haynie's idea was to build a Methodist church in the city as had the Presbyterians. For this, he needed a benefactor. A prominent resident in Knoxville, widely known for his benevolence, was city founder James White's son, Judge Hugh Lawson White. Judge White was then President of the Bank of Tennessee. When the request for a lot was presented to the Judge, his reply was, "If Johnnie wants a lot for a Methodist Church, he shall have it." White donated a half-acre lot on Flint Hill to Haynie's Methodists and often visited the church. White, a supporter of Andrew Jackson, later became Chief Justice of the Tennessee Supreme Court and was US Senator from Tennessee, 1828-1840.

The small wooden church, locally called White's Chapel, was likely built within the next few months and has had an impact on the city for more than two centuries. Rev. Haynie's eleven year-daughter, Catherine, died in 1818 and was buried in the White's Chapel graveyard. In 1825, her grandfather, Spencer, also passed away and was buried beside his granddaughter. Rev. Haynie moved his family west soon thereafter. This vigorous and dedicated pastor moved to Alabama and then to Texas where he became an outstanding regional leader. He was chaplain of the Texas House of Representatives in Austin and served as chaplain of the 1845 convention that approved the annexation of the Texas Republic by the United States.

New donations of $500 or more to the Building Fund made during the duration of 2020 will receive a complimentary signed copy of Unfinished Journey and will be recognized at the end of the calendar year for helping us as we move further along in this particular journey together to pay off our building project.

- Dwight Wade, Jr., MD, Author of Unfinished Journey
