HAPPENING AT CHURCH STREET

Thanksgiving Baskets - 2020

Each November, Church Street tackles a Thanksgiving Basket project that spreads joy to all those involved. For many, it has become a beloved tradition and a kick-off to the holiday season. With the challenges we face in the midst of the current pandemic, this event is going to take on a new form this fall. But we are thrilled to announce that Thanksgiving Baskets are a GO!

Rather than having a one-day blitz, we are spreading the project out over a week, offering us the chance to safely follow protocol while still serving our community (schedule at right).

If you are interested in participating in this project, please scan the QR code to sign up for a shift! We are limiting the number of households at each shift to ensure the safety of all participants. This event takes a lot of hands to make everything run smoothly. If you would like to support this project financially, you can do so by donating directly to the "Thanksgiving Basket" item at churchstreetumc.org/give. The cost for one basket is $55, but any amount will make a huge difference in this project! We can't wait for you to join us as we serve the Knoxville community together!

Journeying Forward

Over the next few months, we will highlight portions of Unfinished Journey and its contents as it describes the journey of Church Street, its people, its challenges, and its successes and failures placed in the context of two centuries of American history. It is a journey far from completed, a story still in the process of being told. Article seventeen is below.

Aftermath of the Civil War and the Methodist Disunion

In his History of Methodism in Holston Conference, Rev.

I.P. Martin described the scene in East Tennessee in 1866: "It was possible to enumerate the casualties of war in dead and wounded, and to compute the destruction of property in every part of the land; but who could compute the moral casualties and spiritual losses of war? Hatred, fear, mistrust, cruelty, loss of confidence, and the crushing of sympathy were worse than anything wrought on the battlefield or by the fire of incendiary. No institution, social, civil, or religious, had escaped the devastating touch of war. In few places had greater havoc been wrought than in East Tennessee and in East Tennessee, no other church had been so deeply wounded as the Methodist Church."

The Hymn Board Angel shares a look of censure.

The South did not regain its antebellum prosperity and development for decades. Knoxville saw the destruction of many of its homes, schools, and churches. Few trees existed within two miles of the city. Knoxville finally restored full water and gas services in 1870. Ex-Confederates could not vote, and ex-slaves were given suffrage. Many Union soldiers returned to begin their careers in Knoxville because of its position as a potential commercial distribution center.

New donations of $500 or more to the Building Fund made during the duration of 2020 will receive a complimentary signed copy of Unfinished Journey and will be recognized at the end of the calendar year for helping us as we move further along in this particular journey together to pay off our building project.

Knoxville witnessed its historic manufacturing boom (100 new factories) between 1880 and 1887. The factories used coal for fuel, increasing the atmospheric soot and building grime. Meanwhile, the black members of the Holston area churches changed to the MEC, some to the AME Zion, and some left the region altogether. By 1880, black churches recorded a membership of 2,760. This segregation persisted until the Methodist uniting in 1939.

In February 1867, the congregation formally thanked the First Presbyterian Church for allowing the use of their church for worship until they built their temporary building. They occupied the new plain building on Church Street a few months later. During this period, there was intense competition between the two Holston Conferences (MEC and MEC, South), and, as they fought court battles over ownership of land and buildings, neither side offered a compromise.

Missed Doses

WHAT TO DO IF YOU MISS A DOSE OF YOUR MEDICINE

Improving compliance was the focus of last month's article. Despite best efforts there are still occasions when a dose may be missed due to unforeseen circumstances. Printed information dispensed with every medication contains a section labeled "What should I do if I forget a dose?" It is very important to consult this information when you discover a missed dose. If you don't keep the printed information it is easily found online.

The recommendation for a long acting medication, or one that stays in the body for a longer period of time, will usually be to skip it and resume with next scheduled dose. For other meds it may be to take a missed dose when remembered if not too close to time for next dose. But what is considered too close? In this situation, I suggest you think about:

- How much time has passed, how many doses are taken each day, and when is next dose due?
- What is it for and what could happen if you miss a dose? (A medication for seizures or a blood thinner to prevent a stroke may have greater implications than one dose of a blood pressure medicine.)

The following options are then available:

1. Take the dose when remembered and resume regular schedule with next dose.
Several sources recommend this option if the dose is no more than 2 to 4 hours late, depending on when the next dose is due.
2. Take the medication when remembered then stagger next doses to get back on schedule.
Additional assistance is suggested if this option is used since several variables should be considered when designing a plan. Call your pharmacist for input.
3. Skip the dose and resume with the next scheduled dose.

DO NOT double the next dose to make up for a missed dose unless instructed to do so by your healthcare provider. Birth control pills are the one exception. It is appropriate to take the missed dose with the next dose in this case and also use an additional method of contraception for the next 7 days.

Be honest with your healthcare provider about missed doses, especially if a blood level is used to monitor the medication. This information is helpful when making decisions about medication adjustments.

These are very general guidelines because best options can vary greatly depending on the medication, dosing interval, and your medical conditions. Have the information before it happens or call a healthcare provider for assistance!

If it becomes more than a rare event, evaluate why it is happening and develop a plan to prevent additional missed doses. Refer back to October article for suggestions to improve compliance. Past articles are easily found within the Parish Health Ministry section of the church's website along with much more information to assist you in your wellness journey!

HARP

HEARING AID CHANGES THE GAME

Growing up, I always had ear infections — three to four a month — since I was six months old. These ear infections would eventually cause me to have hearing loss. In 8th grade, I first noticed that I was missing key words in class and when talking with family and friends. My parents then took me to see an ENT who confirmed my hearing loss. My hearing loss continued to decline to the point that I realized that I was missing too much. And that would cause a big issue with being able to finish college.

Hearing aids looked like just a dream that would never be able to come true. My insurance does not cover hearing aids, so I made it my job to save for them. One day this summer, my grandparents told me about the hearing aid exchange program (HARP) through Church Street. I applied and was accepted. I found the whole process very easy.

I received my hearing aids a few weeks ago. I did have to pay a small fee and I decided to purchase a Uni-Dex unit, which allows my hearing aids to connect by Bluetooth to multiple devices. This will greatly improve my college experience. This whole experience was a gift from God. Without the HARP program at Church Street, I would've never gotten this opportunity. I now I hear everything, and this has made my life so much better. Thank you to the HARP program.

Advent Studies

CELEBRATE THE SEASON WITH CHURCH STREET MUSIC

Because there is no live choral music available for this Advent/Christmas season, the music department is releasing a CD recording of the 2018 Master Arts performance of Part 1 of MESSIAH, presented by the Parish Adult Choir, Orchestra, & Soloists, and recorded live in performance on December 18, 2018 in the Church Street nave. The CD is available for $15 (shipped, $20). All proceeds will benefit the Beacon of Hope Food Co-op for our friends in South Knoxville. The music department will underwrite all production costs.

If you would like the church to ship your CDs, please add $5 for postage and handling for a total of $20. Payment: Mail a check to CSUMC at CSUMC, P.O. Box 1303, Knoxville, TN 37901 or pay online at churchstreetumc.org/give.

TABLE GRACES VOLUME II

This little booklet was compiled for use in our Christian homes, as we endeavor to nurture our children, and indeed, our entire families in the regular practice of table prayer. Designed to be folded and placed on the dining table, it is hoped that family members will take turns selecting a blessing to be offered at least once daily. The cost is $10 payable to CSUMC Spiritual Enrichment Fund.

Christmas Through the Eyes of Joseph: An Advent Study with Open Door Class - Beginning on Sunday, November 22, at 9 am on Zoom, Rev. Rick Isbell will lead a 5-week Advent study entitled Faithful. The study looks at Christmas through the eyes of Joseph. Written by the Rev. Adam Hamilton the study reflects on Joseph from his beginnings as a humble carpenter to his all important role as the earthly father of Jesus. Joseph is sometimes overlooked in the Nativity story but his courageous actions were crucial to the birth of Jesus and God's salvation plan for humanity.

- + Through the study, Adam Hamilton seeks to answer some basic questions:
- + What can we learn about God from Joseph's story?
- + What can we learn about ourselves from Joseph's story, and
- + How does Joseph shed light on the meaning of the Christmas story?

Please join the Open Door class on Sunday mornings at 9 am beginning Nov. 22. The book Faithful can be ordered through Cokesbury.com or Amazon. Zoom link: <http://bit.ly/opendoorclass20> (PW: 937401)

Young Adults Advent Study - Beginning on Wednesday, December 2, at 7 pm, young adults (20s and 30s) are invited to the home of Rev. Palmer Cantler and her husband Brent Gregory to join in a study of Names for the Messiah by theologian and scholar Walter Bruggemann. The study will take place on Wednesdays in Advent, through December 23. There will be an in-person opportunity and a Zoom link for those who wish to join virtually. If you would like to participate, please email Rev. Palmer Cantler: pcantler@churchstreetumc.org. The book may be purchased through Cokesbury.

Pastors Advent Study - Beginning Wednesday, December 2, at 7 pm, you are invited to join our pastors for an Old Testament lectionary study for Advent. The study will take place as a webinar format, very similar to the Summer Lecture Series, with times for questions throughout the study each week. Because Advent is a busy season, we will record these sessions and upload them to our YouTube channel and website so you can watch them later if 7 pm on Wednesdays is not a convenient time.

I'm Still Here Study - Advent is a time of expectation and seeing with new eyes. I'm Still Here is an excellent book for those who feel they are beginners in the racism conversation. Austin Channing Brown's book is a personal story that helps us understand seeing things from a different perspective. Leaders include Rev. Andy Ferguson and others. Sundays via Zoom at 4 pm on November 29, December 6, 13, and 20. It is widely available wherever books are sold.

CHILDREN'S ADVENT ACTIVITIES

This Advent will be different, but we are going to make sure it is still a special time for families to celebrate the birth of Christ.

Advent Craft Festival

We cannot have a large gathering for our annual Advent Craft Festival, but we still have 12 crafts for your family to do together. Each craft will have all the supplies bagged together and step-by-step instructions. If you volunteer to help pack Thanksgiving baskets you will pick up your craft box then; otherwise, a drive-by pick up will be Saturday, November 21 9:30-2 at the Welcome Center.

Advent Wreath

One of the ways the church celebrates Advent is by lighting our Advent wreath at each service. If your family does not have an Advent wreath, we are providing them for families to be able to participate in lighting the wreath at your house each Sunday. We will provide the ring and the candles. Sign up for a craft box or a wreath by scanning the QR code above - SIGN UP BY NOV. 15.
