Bishop Swanson asks Holstonians to 'give sacrificially' for Chile's relief

[Following are excerpts from a Feb. 27th letter from the resident bishop of the Holston Conference, Bishop James E. Swanson, Sr.]

As the pictures from Chile emerge, we are again called to understand the depth of suffering caused in that country by the fifth most powerful earthquake ever recorded.

I've watched with pride as you have responded in such a magnificent way to the people of Haiti following their disastrous earthquake just last month. You so far have given almost $700,000 and more than 20,000 health kits to help Haiti. You showed again that you always respond in a faithful manner when needs arise. I thank God for you and your generosity each day.

Now, I am asking you to respond again. This request, coming so soon after the earthquake in Haiti, will require each of us to dig deeply into our pockets, to give sacrificially to assist the people of Chile. UMCOR is already at work in Chile, preparing the United Methodist response.

Please make your donations and as Holston learns of other UMCOR needs, we will make you aware. More kits may be needed, but we will wait for instructions from UMCOR.

During this season of Lent, we are reminded daily of the ultimate sacrifice made on our behalf by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Let us show our gratitude for all that God has done for us through our sacrificial giving on behalf of the people of Chile.

Senior adults invited to Jubilation 10th Anniversary Event

Last year 23 Church Streeters attended Jubilation and came back with rave reviews. This year's Jubilation will be held April 11-13 at the MeadowView Resort and Conference Center in Kingsport, TN. This Holston Conference event for adults age 55+ offers exciting speakers, workshops, Bible study, worship and fellowship in a resort setting.

Key leaders in this year's event include Bishop James Swanson as the keynote speaker, Bishop Richard Looney as the Bible study leader and Bishop Mary Virginia (Dindy) Taylor as the worship leader. Several workshops will be led by noted persons such as Don Dare, Charles Maynard, John Ousley and others. Participants also have the opportunity to visit and talk with numerous professionals regarding the seven dimensions of wellness (physical, spiritual, emotional, intellectual, vocational, environmental and social).

Informational and registration brochures can be found around the church or for online registration, you may visit <http://jubilation.holston.org>.

Census Tidbit: It's Coming Soon!

As the 2010 Census approaches, each of our households will receive a form. Since the census has such an impact on the communities in which we all live and work, Knoxville area churches have partnered with the U.S. Census Bureau to encourage participation.

As mandated by the U.S. Constitution, every person living in the United States must be counted – both citizens and noncitizens. Data from this national count help determine key funding and government representation decisions. Please complete and mail back your form and encourage your family, friends and neighbors to do the same. For more information, visit 2010census.gov.

Lenten Devotional Resources Available

Lenten devotional booklets, provided by a private donation, are available at various locations within the church. Also the March-April issue of The Upper Room can be found in the literature racks. During this time of Lent and introspection concerning our spiritual lives, please make use of these devotional resources.

“Reflections....What Time Is It?”

– Jan Buxton-Wade, associate pastor

Buddhist monks from Tibet once came to the Knoxville Museum of Art to work painstakingly on a unique design. For many days the monks put down different colors of sand, a few grains at a time, to create intricate shapes and patterns inside a wooden frame. The result was an astonishingly beautiful sand painting. After special viewings of their fascinating artwork, the spiritual leaders took the piece to the Henley Street Bridge, turned it over, and let the wind carry the sand to the waters below.

This was an expression of their belief that all things change, that life is transitory. We Christians also know that life is fleeting. There are beginnings, midpoints, and endings. For everything there is a season, we read in Ecclesiastes. Something inside us, however, tightly grips the familiar. We ignore the signs even when time for change does come.

Maybe it takes longer for you to climb the steps to the door of the nave. Maybe you forget to return that important phone call or you keep retelling the same stories in your homilies. Someone once said that the mark of true wisdom is knowing what time it is in your own life. All these signs are like dots on the face of a clock.

In recent months I have been reflecting about what time it is for me, and I have come to recognize my own limits. I realize that I am not as resilient or as energetic as I was when I became your pastor in 1998. At the close of this conference year, therefore, I have decided to retire from regular pastoral work. This decision did not come easily for me, as the pastoral role has become who I am. It's difficult as well, because the worship, ministries, pastors, and members of Church Street are surely the best in the conference. I will be saddened not to be part of it all.

In her book, The Gift of Years – Growing Old Gracefully, Joan Chittister urges us to look closely at the rapid pace which devours our days. She challenges us to ponder the depth of our existence on this good earth, saying: It is time to accept the invitation to go light-footed into the here and now – because we spend far too much of life preparing for the future rather than enjoying the present.

After June, my husband and I have no big plans to explore the world, no great projects to undertake. But perhaps I will have time to watch the birds on the back fence or to photograph some of the wildflowers we recently planted in the side yard. Maybe I will have fun sweeping the steps of the family cabin along the Little Pigeon River, a place which we generally visit only three days a year.

As a youngster, we used to frequent Flint Rock near Emerts Cove in the mountains. I remember holding onto the edge of the big rock ever so long, while my brothers and sisters called from below: Come on in, the water's great! When I mustered my courage, I finally released my grip on the granite and slipped headlong into the cooling depths.

Somehow that image returns to me as I think about what retirement might look like. It's problematic, though, as God doesn't recognize the word "retirement." He just keeps fashioning plentiful opportunities for Christian service, then calls us to trust.

There is a season for everything under heaven, says the sage in the Hebrew scripture. True wisdom is knowing what season it is in your own life. It is knowing when to let go.
